This in-depth workshop for Youth Workers will help you meet the emerging needs of today's youth. Practical, hands-on, and experiential tools will be featured. The competencies you will gain in this three day workshop are:

- understand youth and adolescent social, physical and mental development.
- find and keep volunteers using time saving systems.
- develop multi-generational communication skills.

These speakers will energize and spark new ideas for programming with youth.

David Remson
Triangle Consulting
Denver, CO

Through this workshop, you will develop a better understanding of the motivations and preferences of each generation and learn effective communication techniques. You will leave understanding why it is important to develop multi-generational skills and why this is important for all organizations. You will also learn:

- techniques for retaining your best workers.
- conflict resolution and communication skills for each generation.
- how to maximize productivity and minimize inter-generational conflict.
- how to build better teams.

David believes that diversity and equity issues are the most crucial topics for organizations.

Janice Fletcher
Professor, University of Idaho
Moscow, ID

The base for all youth workers is to understand youth and adolescent development; you will understand how applying the principles of positive youth development can strengthen your programs and reach more youth. By understanding youth and using best practices with skills learned you will effectively reach young people with positive programming.

Susan Hazelton
Executive Director Family Advocate Program
Boise, ID

Learn to recruit without tears, how and where to find effective dedicated volunteers to work with youth. You will be inspired with common sense tools to reach audiences and find new volunteers.

Cathy Reckmeyer
Coordinator of Volunteer Services
Saint Alphonsus Regional Medical Center
Boise, ID

Increase your impact by keeping valued volunteers. Learn what they need to keep them engaged, and how to measure accomplishments. You will learn five key volunteer retention tools.
